The President's Corner

The changes in education that educators are being asked to implement are overwhelming. We are not given the time to process how these changes will impact our programs or our schools. The work we do each and every day truly prepares our students to be global citizens. Our politicians and state education officials are too preoccupied with testing and data to realize that the humanities are what connect our students to the peoples of the world. Due to cuts or reductions in programs, students are being denied the very programs that keep them excited about education. We must double our advocacy efforts.

In my welcome message I speak to the importance of connecting with parents. They are great allies who are so often overlooked. Reach out to parents and share with them the great work that is done to prepare their children for the global community. In January, the NYSAFLT Board of Directors approved a new award to recognize a parent who has gone above and beyond to advocate for World Language programs. Please consider nominating a worthy parent who understands the work we do as a profession!

There is strength in numbers. We can only advocate for teachers and programs when we have a growing membership base. I am reaching out to you, as members, to ask you to find two or three teachers to join or to renew their NYSAFLT membership prior to June 30. Every new or renewed membership sends a powerful message that we will not go away and that we will fight for the programs that provide our children with the tools to be college and career ready.

I encourage you to take advantage of the many professional development opportunities that NYSAFLT provides its membership. Our webinar series includes top-notch experts in the field of language education. Join us in Syracuse in May, where our Colloquium will feature outstanding panelists and presenters from around the state. Consider attending the Summer Institute, our summer camp for world language educators, in August in Oneonta. Our Annual Conference returns to Saratoga in October. Our events allow teachers to put theory to practice in order to excite, educate, and retain our polyglots!

I wish you all a successful second-half of your school year. If I can be of any assistance to you, please do not hesitate to contact me at ffratto@nysaflt.org.

Warmest wishes,

Francesco L. Fratto

Special Announcement from the NYSAFLT President

A message from the President:

We are in a time of unprecedented change and many programs are either under threat of elimination or reduction. Fortunately, the Board of Education of the Merrick Union Free School District voted to continue with their FLES program after the community protested the proposed elimination. NYSAFLT applauds their decision and supports the Board's active engagement in sustaining the program.

This is a story about the power of advocacy. Parents and students in the community spoke up and created a petition to defend the program that helps students become internationally minded citizens. NYSAFLT provided support on several levels for their cause. Tara Tassani, our NYC/Long Island Regional Director, Diana Zuckerman, our Public Advocacy chair, and Harriet Barnett and Marissa Coulehan, co-chairs of our FLES committee, supported the parents and spoke to the press about the importance of FLES programs and how they too support literacy. The partnership that was formed resulted in saving a FLES program that was valued by the community. The parent community is often overlooked, but this is a clear example that we, as a profession, need to engage them in order to defend the very programs that help students become college and career ready. NYSAFLT encourages you to appropriately engage your parents and invite them in to your classroom to see the great work that takes place daily! Let's forge more partnerships early on in the process so that we can avoid defending a program that is threatened with elimination or reduction.

On a snowy and slushy Monday, February 2, NYC LOTE teachers and NYS AFLT members braved the stormy weather to attend the citywide LOTE conference sponsored by the Department of English Language Learners and Student Support (DELLSS). Its theme was Engaging All Learners in the 21st Century LOTE Classroom. Participants attended this full-day professional development event hosted by Long Island City High School in Queens. Chancellor Fariña discussed the importance of LOTE and Bilingual Education in city schools as a key focus of her term in office. The Chancellor's validating remarks set a very positive tone for a day of 21 workshops, divided into two sessions, from which teachers could choose.

Public Advocacy

Public advocacy for world languages has become part of being a language educator. There are many ways that we all promote our programs in and out of the classroom, such as doing a creative activity that students speak about in the hallways, holding an event or presenting for parents. We would like to hear your stories, ideas, challenges and successes. Please email them to Diana Zuckerman.

Diana Zuckerman met with the New York State United Teachers (NYSUT) in December as one of the LOTE Subject Area Committee (SAC) representatives. SAC representatives informed NYSUT of our World Language issues including threats to our programs, language credit for heritage language learners and the recognition of World Languages as a core subject area. Linda Zussman, LOTE SAC Chair and NYSAFLT past president, and the committee brought our priorities to NYSUT and the other subject area committees. Our message included, “Knowledge of at least one language other than English is a 21st century skill and not mentioning LOTE when discussing CORE, Common Core, and STEAM (STEM including the Arts) is an egregious omission. We need to get the message out – to colleagues, professional groups, state organizations, and social media. We need public service announcements and sponsors. We need to create a white paper or article asserting the fact that knowing a second or third language is an essential 21st century skill as well as a necessity for success in the global marketplace, something which the rest of the world recognizes.”

NYS AFLT has been working closely with NYSUT to ensure that we are promoting the ability for our students to speak more than one language. We continue working with NYSUT Legislative Representative Jackie Paredes so that our members can be more involved in the decision-making process that impacts our programs. Thanks to all of you who were able to participate in NYSUT’s in-district lobby day in February. Meeting with legislators is critical, especially at a time when there is a lack of adequate funding for education and an over emphasis on testing our students. Your presence shows a strong commitment to World Languages. There will be two more NYSUT in-district lobby days in April. We will notify NYSAFLT members of the exact dates.

NYSUT’s World Language Subject Area Committee works on world languages being in the forefront of education for our NYS students.

Stay up-to-date on LOTE issues through our NYSAFLT Advocacy Center. We have a wide range of articles & research documents, ways to contact your legislators and take action as well as links to valuable resources. Thanks for all that you do for LOTE. What we do every day in and out of the classroom with our students makes a world of difference. LOTE educators are our hope for a better, more compassionate world.

National Network for Early Language Learning / FLES News

The NYSAFLT FLES committee has awarded a FLES teacher incentive grant to Lori Langer de Ramirez of the Dalton School in NYC to help host the first (hopefully annual) FLES Fest for language teachers K-8 on Saturday, April 18. This is an event to gather FLES teachers together to "talk shop," swap ideas, and listen to keynote speaker Janet Glass. The event is being co-sponsored with NYSAFLT. For more information, or to sign up to attend this free event, visit <http://www.miscositas.com/FLESFest>. Space is limited!

FLES committee efforts to assist a Long Island district in jeopardy of losing its FLES program have paid off! The Merrick Board of Education voted in early February to keep their FLES program with plans to reform it in the future. The FLES committee assisted with a social media campaign to petition supporters of the Merrick FLES program. Additionally, FLES committee co-chair Harriet Barnett was interviewed in an article in the Long Island Herald about the potential program cut.

HAVE YOU HEARD????

NYSED has officially changed "LOTE" to "World Languages" and has changed the office name from The Office of Bilingual Education and Foreign Language Studies to The Office of Bilingual Education and World Languages (OBE-WL)

The Office of Bilingual Education and World Languages (OBE-WL) seeks to promote and support the teaching and learning of one or more languages and cultures, in addition to the English language. Our goals are to ensure that our students have a deep and enduring understanding of cultures, including their own, and to acquire functional proficiency in the target language(s). These competencies will provide our students the ability to view the world through multiple lenses, participate fully and responsibly in the 21st century as global citizens, and contribute to our students' college, career, and world-readiness. Message from the Editor

It has been a long cold winter for many of us here in NYS and I, for one, am looking forward to Spring! I was able to escape the cold for a couple weeks in January as I accompanied several students to Lille, France, as part of our high school exchange program. It's amazing how good thirty degrees can feel when coming from highs of five!

How have your districts coped with the many snow/cold days we've had to use this year? Hopefully some of the snow will melt by the time of the Colloquium in Syracuse in May!

You may have noticed a few things missing in this edition of the NYS AFLT News. The "Where are They Now?" and "Member Spotlight" segments were not included as we wanted to focus more space on our current advocacy issues. Don't worry, these segments will be back in June! If you have any NYS AFLT members you would like to see featured in the Member Spotlight section, email them to me at newsletter@nysaflt.org. Don't forget to send your answers to this edition's Scavenger Hunt, as well. You could just win yourself a fabulous NYSA-prize!
